

October, 13 - 9:29 AM

JetBlue adds another Dominican Republic destination

Article source: <http://www.dominicantoday.com/app/article.aspx?id=25743>

Santo Domingo.– JetBlue Airways, famed for its low-cost but full-service flights, announced it is adding another Dominican Republic destination, with new New York-Puerto Plata flights commencing on Jan. 10, 2008.

JetBlue already flies to Santiago and Santo Domingo. Fares on the Puerto Plata flights will start at $109 one-way; the flights will provide more access to the Dominican Republic's north coast resorts.

The airline also announced that it will begin flying to the Dutch Caribbean island of St. Maarten beginning on Jan. 17, 2008.

The daily flights from New York to Princess Juliana Airport also will provide new access to the French side of the island, St. Martin. Fares will start at $159 each way.

Other JetBlue destinations in the Caribbean include Aruba; Bermuda; Cancun; Nassau, Bahamas; and Aguadilla, Ponce and San Juan, Puerto Rico.